The Rich Boy's Christmas Prank with Lucky

Chapter 1 – Tommy Bright

Tommy Bright was a rich boy. He lived in a big house with many rooms, many chairs, and many rules. But Tommy did not like rules. He liked jokes, clever pranks, and loud laughter.

Tommy laughed every day. Sometimes he laughed so hard that he fell from his chair. His parents often said, "Tommy, you have laughed too much!" But Tommy only laughed more.

Tommy also had a dog called Lucky. Lucky was small, fast, and very curious. Lucky had already joined many of Tommy's pranks.

One December morning, Tommy put a toy snowman in his father's office chair. When Mr. Bright sat down, the chair made a funny sound. Mr. Bright jumped up, then laughed. "Tommy, you have done another prank!"

Mrs. Bright sighed. "You have made us laugh many times, but you must be careful. A prank should not make people angry."

Tommy nodded. "I understand. I will make a Christmas prank that is clever, safe, and funny."

Chapter 2 – Friends Arrive

Lucy and Emma, Tommy's friends, came to visit. They were clever girls, and they liked Tommy's jokes, but they also liked peace.

"Tommy," said Lucy, "you have made us laugh many times. But today, we want to see your biggest prank."

Tommy's eyes were bright. "Then come to the Christmas Eve party tonight. I have prepared something very special. It is not a simple trick. It is a clever prank, and nobody will be unhappy."

Emma asked, "Is it safe?"

Tommy laughed until he almost fell from his chair. "Safe? Of course! But it will be very funny."

Lucky barked happily, as if he already knew the plan.

Chapter 3 – The Christmas Eve Party

That evening, the Bright family had a grand Christmas party. The house was full of guests in beautiful clothes. There was (were) music, food, and dancing. A tall Christmas tree stood in the hall, shining with lights.

Tommy had already prepared his prank. He had worked for three days.

First, he had hidden balloons under the chairs to create a lively start. Second, he had carefully placed small, decorated boxes under the tables. Inside these boxes were small toys: whistles, masks, and paper crowns. Finally, he had written notes with kind words — one note was carefully placed beside each guest's plate. He had even trained Lucky to carry a small bell in his mouth.

When the guests sat down, the balloons went pop! Everyone jumped, then laughed at the sudden noise.

Next, the guests noticed the small boxes under their tables. They opened them and laughed again as they put on the funny toys.

Then, one of the guests picked up the elegantly folded note next to her plate. "Look at this!" she said loudly. Soon, everyone was holding their notes, and the kind words were read aloud:

"You have danced like a star!"

"You have smiled like the sun!"

"You have laughed like a child!"

The guests clapped their hands, touched by the compliments.

Finally, Lucky ran into the hall with the bell. The Christmas tree began to sing a funny song. "This prank is wonderful!"

Chapter 4 – The Clever Ending

Mrs. Bright was surprised. “Tommy, you have played a prank, but nobody is angry. You have made everyone laugh.”

Lucy whispered to Emma, “I think it is perfect. I have never laughed so much at a Christmas party.”

Emma agreed. “Tommy has made this party unforgettable.”

Mr. Bright smiled. “Tommy, you have done many pranks before. You have made noise, you have made a mess, but tonight you have made joy. This prank is clever.”

Tommy nodded. “Yes, Father. I wanted laughter, not trouble.”

Lucky wagged his tail, as if he was proud too.

Chapter 5 – The Funniest and Most Surprising Moment

The party was almost finished. The guests were tired, but Tommy had one last surprise. He stood on a chair and said, “Ladies and gentlemen, thank you for coming. I have prepared the final Christmas prank.”

He pulled a rope. Suddenly, hundreds of balloons fell from the ceiling. But inside the balloons were small feathers and glitter. The feathers flew everywhere, and the glitter shone like snow.

The guests laughed and tried to catch them. Then, with a loud sound, the Christmas tree opened in the middle. Inside was a giant Santa puppet, waving its arms and singing, “Ho, ho, ho!”

Everyone gasped, then laughed. Lucky barked loudly, jumped onto Tommy’s lap. Tommy laughed so hard, lost his balance, and slipped from the chair.

He fell to the floor, with Lucky licking his face. Tommy laughed so hard that he could not stand up.

The guests laughed too. Mrs. Bright laughed. Mr. Bright laughed. Lucy and Emma laughed until tears came to their eyes.

It was the funniest and most surprising ending. Nobody was unhappy. Tommy had wanted laughter, and he had found it.

Epilogue – The Lesson of Laughter

Tommy Bright has played many pranks. He has made many people laugh. He has fallen from his chair many times. Lucky has joined him in many pranks. But Tommy has also taught his family and friends something important: laughter is a treasure, especially when it is shared. The guests went home with smiles. Laughter makes people happy, and kindness is better than being strict.

And so, in the big house with many rooms, many chairs, and many rules, there is also much laughter every Christmas.
